

Twenty-two years later, Beethoven wrote to the music publisher Schott in Mainz--

"...to my brother---I have in place of paying a sum I owe him, handed over the Grand Overture which was performed here, six Bagatelles or Kleinigkeiten (trifles) for pianoforte, many of them being considerably developed and probably the best of their kind which I have written.--"

He obviously considered these "trifles" important enough to include them in the following list of opus numbers written to Schott in March 1825.

"Mass No 123 (Missa Solemnis)
Overture 124 (Weihe des Hauses)
Symphony 125 (IXth Symphony)
Bagatelles 126
Quartett 127" (in E flat Major
